

See "IBD2020 global forum: results of an international patient survey on quality of care" on page 537-545.

Supplementary Fig. 1. Medication use at the time of responding to the questionnaire. (A) CD and (B) UC.

Supplementary Fig. 2. Unemployment rates for respondents^a versus national averages^b. ^aCalculated as respondents (aged 16–65 years) who reported themselves unemployed out of the total number of respondents (aged 16–65 years) who were unemployed, working (employee and self-employed) or on long-term sick leave (IBD related and for other reasons); ^bNational averages from European Commission¹ and Trading Economics (Canada)² for June 2014. Chi-square test for 2 countries with higher unemployment rates for IBD vs. national average – Italy: 15.7% vs. 12.1%, respectively, $P < 0.01$; Germany: 5.7% vs. 5.0%, $P = 0.450$.

REFERENCES

1. Eurostat: employment and unemployment. European Commission Web site. <http://ec.europa.eu/eurostat/en/web/lfs/statistics-illustrated>. Accessed 23 July, 2018.
2. Canada employment rate, 1966–2018. Trading Economics Web site. <https://tradingeconomics.com/canada/unemployment-rate>. Accessed 23 July, 2018.